become part of every cadet's life

Benedictine as one.

One student body, one military unit, one spirit. When one part fails, we all fail, when one succeeds, all succeed. Our quest? To make ourselves part of Benedictine, and Benedictine part of ourselves. To look and say, "I belong there, I am part of that great place."

At Benedictine, a Cadet is taught to realize his own value. This is called Responsibility. To know that it is within his power to contribute, and then to contribute. This is real Responsibility. He is taught the value of others. This is called Respect. To realize that there are people who have earned the right to be respected, and that he will be respected only if he respects others. He is taught always to be honest, truthful, Christian. This is called Integrity. To understand that truth, honesty, and Christian principles are his guidelines to perfection as a human being. And a Cadet is taught to care. To care about his fellow Cadet. To care enough to become involved. To better himself so that he will have more to give others. This is called Love.

Good times, bad times, time to think

Things happen when you're a Cadet. Some things happen that are funny, others not so funny. Serious things, happy things, things that make you want to quit, and then things that show you that you can't, you're a Cadet.

Good times, bad times, time to let you think. Think about things that happen. Realize that you don't have to let things happen to you, that you can make things happen. Not to follow along letting things put you into your slot, but to lead and make your own place, you're a Cadet.

To do things, to get involved. Not to be afraid to try. Contribute; your time, your work, your play, yourself. Do something, anything as long as you are contributing. To give is your responsibility, you're a Cadet.

You see things happen, and then find out that they only happen because others have made them happen. They have contributed, they have given part of themselves, and they receive from what they give. After four years you realize that there was so much that you should have given, could have given, you're a cadet.

Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time.

T. S. Eliot

To arrive at the end of the year at Benedictine. A year of hard work and hard play. To know that it's over, that it will never happen again. Not to know whether to laugh, or to cry. To realize now how much that time gone by means. To really know Benedictine, it's spirit, it's importance.

We have arrived where we started. Facing a new and greater challenge. To change the world or just one person.

This time we know where we are, we know the place. And knowing the place for the first time, knowing also that because we have arrived at the end of this search, we must go on.

Realization of ability is Hard work, study, reports, help learn facts and concepts

coordinated goal of faculty and students

Through minutes, hours, days, weeks, months of classes. Through lectures, discussions, arguments, homework, tests.
Through hard work, study, reports, and compositions. We realize the purpose of it all. To learn. Not only facts and figures, but concepts, ranging from responsibility to love

Finally we realize that teachers are not here to make things rough. They are here to guide us, by their own example, by showing us the way to go, leading us towards tomorrow. Taking us through the process of preparing for tomorrow. Showing us how to get along. Through example, concern for individuals, realization of potentialities, the need to give, love

Father Adrian retains affable, effective hold on administrative post

This year, Father Adrian completed his eighth successful term as principal of Benedictine. His personal interest in each student was especially appreciated by his Latin II, III, and IV students.

The moderator of several student functions, Father Augustine needs no introduction. Instructor in English and religion as well as Guidance Counselor, Father keeps in close contact with the cadets.

Lt. Tracy M. Caine, Commandant, headed the military department and taught chemistry and religion. As moderator of the Student Council, Lt. Caine showed his interest in cadet affairs.

Father Henry filled the roles of Prior, Treasurer, and Teacher of religion, physical science, and geometry. From him, underclassmen received a firm foundation in math and science.

Bills and report cards occupied the time of Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Mathewson, school secretaries. Their untiring efforts added much to the administration of Benedictine.

Father Henry (top) focuses his attention on sophomore Geometry problems; Mrs. Mathewson (above left) pauses from bookkeeping, while Mrs. Woods (above right) greets visitors in her unexcelled manner.

taught by talk, tape, and tremendous patience

Father Benedict led his classes through the intricacies of French I and II. With his famous drumstick, Father sometimes resorted to pounding knowledge into unwilling students.

Through his Latin I courses, Father Kieran introduced the freshmen to foreign language. Aside from Latin, Father also instructed freshman and junior religion.

"Rembertus locutus, cause finita" set the tone for Father Rembert's Latin I classes. In both religion IV and Latin, Father's years of experience as a teacher created a lively course.

Father Patrick combined his own knowledge with an assortment of books and tapes to instruct his German I and II classes. Although his classes were difficult, Father always made them interesting.

Wyatt, Loughridge, Fr. Thomas, add new department

Whether working miracles on the basketball court or teaching Algebra II, Coach Rutledge won the respect and admiration of team and students. Coach also acted as Athletic Director and headed the B.C.C.C.

A graduate of the Class of '62, Mr. Wyatt returned to Benedictine this year to teach. In Geometry and Algebra I, he taught the underclassmen the fundamentals of high school math.

Father Thomas was another new teacher at B.H.S. this year. His quiet manner was appreciated by his Algebra I students.

Coach Loughridge combined Physics with Trig Algebra, and General Math

Literature viewed as key to understanding

In English IV course, Father Patrick prepared puzzled seniors for college. With sometimes low grades, the seniors received a good basis in literature and vocabulary.

Father Raymond guided the freshmen through their first year of high school English. In his religion I and II classes, Father kept the underclassmen abreast of the changes in the Church.

Beowulf, Paradise Lost, and Macbeth characterized different eras of English literature in Coach Zenner's English III course. Along with English, Mr. Zenner also taught Religion I and II.

Mr. George Campbell, a newcomer to B.H.S., taught American Literature in English II. He also coached the debate team.

Mr. Lester Wagner, a Benedictine alumnus, returned this year as a teacher in English, chemistry, and physical science.

Mr. Crowder (above) makes a point to biologists; Col. Caine (right) supervises Battalion exec J. B. Crostic

Biology, Physical Science,

students to the microscopic and the macrocosm

Science studies uncover mysteries of life;

Protozoa, the laws of heredity, and rockets occupied Coach Crowder's Biology classes during the past year. In his Phys. Ed. class, Coach trained bodies and kept a sharp lookout for promising athletes.

Ltc. Tracy M. Caine explained the confusing aspects of valences to his Chemistry classes, and used his experience as husband and father to add a new slant to Religion IV

F. Henry (above) hypnotizes his Physical Science class; Mr Loughridge (below) "settles down" his Physics scholars with graphs, cartoons, etc

explore nature of matter

Father Henry expounded the laws of Euclid and the basic principles of Chemistry and Physics to his Geometry and Physical Science classes. In Religion II, Father taught the Sophomores Church History

A new teacher at Benedictine, Mr. Loughridge taught the seniors Physics and Trig, and the underclassmen Algebra and General Math. His agility and humor made him very popular with his students

A.A. office, library radiate ladies' charm, influence, assistance

Mrs. Ava Soden, Athletic Association Secretary, brightened the office with her cheerful smile as she sold jackets and tickets to a steady stream of cadets Father Ambrose took over this year as librarian at Benedictine. Sent here from Belmont Abbey, Father also taught Religion III the second semester.

Mrs. Howard filled the position of Assistant Librarian. Her helpful assistance was appreciated by all the students who sought her aid

U.S. and World History and World Geography occupied Coach Richard Lyons this year. Section tests and outlines formed a memorable part of his course.

Mr. Michael Jarrett led the Seniors and Sophomores through the court cases and dates of Government and World History. He also served as Dance Committee Moderator.

Coach Jim McGinnis taught typing, pre-algebra, and phys. ed. As head football coach Mr. McGinnis led the Cadets to a 7-2-1 season.

Mrs. Soden (top) checks Athletic Association records. Fr. Ambrose (below left) reads over reference book, as Mrs. Howard (below) alphabetically arranges cards for card catalogue

Tactical NCO's assist commandant in training

One of the benefits of the Military Institute rating are the Army N.C.O.s. The members of the Military Cadre teach military classes and supervise the Cadet officers.

S.F.C. Nelson Eanes is assistant property custodian. He supervises the operation of the Supply and Ordnance depts., and also operates the book store and coaches the Rifle Team.

S.F.C. Clyde Wheeler is assigned as a tactical N.C.O. to various companies, and supervises the Military Affairs and Plans and Training sections of the Staff.

S. Sgt. Larry Strain supervises the Personnel and Adjutant sections of the staff. He is also assigned to various companies as a tactical N.C.O.

Congenial three supply restoration of energy

Feeding a troop of 367 hungry Cadets was a challenge met this year by Mrs. Marcella Welsh, assisted by Mrs. Mary Hale and Mrs. Ethel Ross. Thanks to these women and the ladies who volunteered their services, the students were provided with a tasty lunch every day. This year saw the continuance of the Hamburgers-on-Monday tradition, although spaghetti was usually not served on the days we wore whites.

Mrs. Welsh (above) prepares for students daily lunch. Mary (upper right) mixes ingredients of nourishment as Ethel (right) rids the kitchen of unwanted debris

Clean walls, halls — mysterious daily miracle

The fact that the school building survived the year with little damage was due to the efforts of Mr. Edward Jones. His many duties extended from keeping the furnace running to replacing lights and cleaning St. Benedict's statue.

Although unnoticed by many students, a daily miracle occurred at Benedictine: all the trash disappeared from the halls every evening. The worker of this miracle, John Hill, worked every night after the students had left.

Mr. Jones (top) tightens washer on Physics lab water tap. Mr. Hill (left) nightly miracle worker sweeps out classroom

Graduates grow — from

We receive from what we give;
we have so much more to give now searching to finding, becoming to being

Four years. Of work, of fun. Four years of trial and error. Of searching and finding. Never to return. Never to be relived. It's over now. And again we are alone. Alone, to face our next challenge, but not unprepared. We go, equipped with four years Moulded, to cope with new trials, new searches, more work, and more giving. We have so much more to give now

Through the years we have grown. In body, mind, and spirit. We have made ourselves a part of Benedictine, and Benedictine a part of ourselves.

The end of a beginning. Where we opened our eyes, and were shown the way to go. At first, we crawled. Now, we walk.

Drills, dances — festive

Sharing joy, disappointment;
parts of every cadet's life

occasions highlight 1969-70 social year

The whole is made up of many parts just as we work, so must we enjoy. Each equally important. Our work is made up of school, military, organizations and teams. Our relaxation includes dances, drills, and military balls.

Books and classes are forgotten. The moment is supreme. Whether watching or participating, we are included in the Spirit. To see part of yourself competing, to aid with Hope. Finally, to watch and share the joy of winning, and the disappointment of losing.

To stand with someone on the dance floor and be completely alone, surrounded by people.

The kiss has been exchanged, the Queens have

Standing, waiting, waiting.
 "God it's hot, when is She coming?"
 Standing, waiting, waiting

They appear, one by one,
 Emerging into the clearing,
 To be seen by all, to be Judged by all.

The officers standing as if Monarchs waiting for their queens.
 And taking their hands as each
 One is presented.

"Pin on the flowers! Pin on the flowers!"
 Now the monarchs are reduced to humble
 Serfs by the small, shiny object
 Which can be fumbled so easily

At last! At last! The flowers and insignia are on,
 The kiss has been exchanged,
 And the queens have been presented to the corps.
 Can it be over already?

been judged by all

Inspiration provided by

Our year as Sponsoring Officers and Sponsors has been an honor and experience never to be forgotten. With dignity and pride, we have led the Corps to its finest year.

Our year has passed. It was only yesterday, or was it years ago, that it began. As we reflect, memories pass in review. It began on October 2, 1969, as a deluge forced Sponsors' Day into the gym. Next came the soft lights and roses of the Sponsors' Dance. We remember, laughingly now, the endless march of the Tobacco Parade; a Corps stretching the length of Parker Field. Sponsors' Dinner, plaques, drills, I.G., all came and went.

Then it was Military Graduation again; the end of an all-too-short year. In triumph and sorrow we received diplomas and favors. Now it was time to pass the reins of leadership to new and eager hands. Suddenly, we realized that it had ended, and we must begin again.

John Cates and Richard Yates, two seniors from C Co., took first place honors in the Rifle Disassembly

There was a slight change in the drill procedure which involved the number of finalists. As in past years the finalists were chosen from the two groups of semi finalists. Then the twelve finalists were drilled until there were only six remaining. These six were then drilled but were not eliminated. Another change came in the judging of the final six in that they were judged on the appearance of their brass, shoes, and haircut as well as in Manual of Arms. After the judging was completed, the first, second, and third places were chosen from the finalists thus finishing the drill.

A Co.'s plaque, which was designed by its sponsor, Jeanne Mason, received the first place award as the Honor Platoon's display placed second

To dream, alone
To know what might have been
And then to stand on the threshold of that dream
With another, sharing,
Warm colours flowing,
Distant trumpets calling,
A mystical, entrancing melody
Ancient in its tune
Bringing together

Each night has its always,
A look down life's hallways, doorways,
To lead us there
Tonight we'll find a dance to light our minds
And see where we have been,
We'll ride along the winds of time
To the threshold of a dream

To be alone,
Together
With people all around.
This is in itself the pleasure,
To know that our giving, without measure,
Gives in return, a wondrous yearn
Of a promise, almost seen
We'll touch the stars,
With our hand
We'll find our place in that dream
Together, alone

Lane breaks tie, captures squad drill honors

Among a field of ten well prepared squads only one could emerge victorious — and this one was the first squad of the second platoon of B Company, commanded by Sgt. Robert Lane.

A proof that the competition was well balanced came with the first place tie between Sgt. Lane and Sgt. Grappone. In order to break the tie the judges gave both squad leaders a card containing five commands. They then began to familiarize themselves with the commands prior to the runoff. After it was all over, Sgt. Grappone of E Co. placed second, and Sgt. Oley of C Co. was third.

At the intermission, the Honor Platoon performed the unusual and difficult black out drill. Then came the judging of the company plaques. The best plaque of the evening belonged to the Honor Platoon with A Co. placing second and Headquarters third.

This year the squads could not be altered in any way, which to the viewer, made this squad drill very interesting.

Shaw wins platoon drill; Gibbs is runner-up

For the second year in a row E Co. won top honors in the Platoon Drill. The winning platoon was led by Lt. Lionel Shaw and Lt. Mike Emory. The first platoon of D Co. commanded by Lt. Lee Gibbs captured second place while Lt. Steve Roberts and the first platoon of C Co. was third.

To save time the platoons were inspected prior to their entrance onto the floor. To begin the drill the first platoons of the five companies were drilled in competition. After intermission the second platoons were put through the competition.

The drill was started by a rising song of "Dixie" played by the Band. The Honor Platoon added excitement to the evening with their black out drill at intermission. First, second, and third, in the plaque competition was won by D Co., Headquarters and B Co. respectively.

None of the platoons had a great deal of time to practice, but the general performance of every platoon was highly favorable.

Student activities create

We can improve ourselves;
but only when we contribute opportunities for personal involvement

Involvement. To do. Give. We all need to contribute. We can improve. To lead an organization, or to follow as best we can. All of this gives to us, as we give. We need only to make the choice, and then the perseverance to follow through, to become more than we are.

Only when we contribute are we able to see that we have Value, that we are somebody. We find that our ideas are worthwhile, that we can express ourselves and put a little bit of ourselves into something. It's so easy to be a somebody. We have only to realize that we are, and then do something about it.

Scholarship and involvement were the hallmarks of the St. Thomas More Chapter of the National Honor Society during the past year. With the largest membership in its history, the Society set standards of leadership and service for the entire student body.

Membership in the N.H.S. is highly selective and carries great prestige. To be considered for the National Honor Society, a student must have at least an eighty-five average. Other factors considered are demerits, extra-curricular activities, and perhaps most important, the student's concern about the school. If a student is judged above average in all categories, he is tapped for membership.

The Society was headed this year by Chairman Robert Hagan, Vice-Chairman Kerry Powers, and Secretary David Solari. One of the highlights of the year was the tapping held in early February. In this assembly twenty-six students were accepted into the N.H.S., raising membership to its highest level.

Leadership, responsibility, maturity characterize

The spirit of each year's class is best demonstrated by the class officers. The class officers organize and supervise pep rallies, dances, and other school functions. They are the mediators between faculty and students. They handle the financial problems of their class. They are the managers and controllers of the school's social 'happenings'

Tinted with responsibility, leadership, and maturity, the Senior Class officers, headed by Burtin Boehlin, and have sparked a new spirit into Benedictine's life, and have maintained that spirit throughout the year

The Junior Class officers sought many goals during the school year, all of them were successful. Among these were the Junior Ring Dance, the setting up of the school's Christmas tree, and the organization of the Fall and Spring games

The Sophomore Class has shown the effects of their year at Benedictine. They have confidently begun accepting new tasks of responsibility.

The Freshman Class has succeeded in conquering their year of harrassment by the Senior class.

Sponsoring officers, commandant, continue BHS trial procedure uniform code, regulations

Because Benedictine is a military school, the students are subject to special regulations which govern their conduct. These rules are enforced by the Military Court, which tried cases involving direct disrespect and disobedience, serious uniform violations, and other offences against the Benedictine Military Code.

The court is composed of all the Sponsoring Officers plus the Sergeant Major, who acts as Sergeant-at-Arms. The Battalion Commander, president of the Court, the Battalion Executive Officer, and the Battalion Adjutant are permanent members and are present at every trial. The rest of the officers serve in rotation, with eight or nine members present for each case. This past year, Pat Nooney served as permanent Trial Council Trials were conducted according to Court Martial procedure. Sentences decided in court were not, however, final, and were subject to review by the Commandant before becoming effective.

students through activities

Perhaps the most important student organization in Benedictine is the Student Council. The Student Council gives the cadets the opportunity to participate, through their elected representatives, in the management of student affairs. Membership consists of one elected representative from the Freshman class, two from the Sophomore, three from the Junior, four from the Senior, plus the Battalion Commander. Lt. Caine, Commandant, is the moderator.

Under its president, Jimmy Lucas, the Student Council was very active during the past year. Activities such as the canned food drive and the field days were assigned as projects to the various classes. In accordance with the constitution, assemblies were held each semester to keep the student body informed on the work of the Student Council.

An important duty of the Council is upholding the honor System. With members sitting on a rotating basis, the Honor Court tried any cases involving lying, cheating, or stealing.

PTA lessens generation

Benedictine High School, like a great many other high schools in the Richmond area, has a very active Parent Teacher Association. The PTA at BHS is a member of the Richmond Federation, and it's work helps to better the understanding between the parents and the faculty.

The parents role in the PTA is to ask questions and offer advice and suggestions toward the improvement of Benedictine. Through the PTA the parents are also notified of the activities and programs of the Cadets. The PTA also conducts a number of worthy fund raising projects in the course of the year and supply volunteer members to assist in Cafeteria help in the Dramatic Department in make-up and costumes.

This year for the first time in the history of the Benedictine PTA a panel discussion entitled, "Youth Looks At Religion And Morals", was on the agenda for the January meeting along with a Student art exhibit. The panel consisted of three students from Benedictine and three from St. Gertrudes. The topics Pre-Martial Sex, Alcohol, and Student Rebellion were discussed by Steve Roberts, Gordon Chancey, and Vince Lowery respectively. From St. Gertrudes Cecilia Arrighi discussed Sex Education, Mary Fleming commented on Dope and Mary Jane Massad spoke on the Liturgical change. Each of the members on the panel gave a speech on their topic which was followed by questions from the audience. Due to the parents extreme interest in the viewpoints of the students this PTA meeting was a total success.

With this in mind the Benedictine PTA performing its duties in the year 1969-70 has bettered the mechanics of B.H.S.

Orientation committee helps freshmen adjust

The change from grade school to high school is a difficult one for many freshmen to make. As an organization of the Student Council, the Orientation Committee works to lessen the impact of this change. The Committee is composed of one Student Council representative from each class, plus the Senior Class President and the Battalion Commander. The main activity of the Orientation Committee was the supervision of the Rat System, through which the freshmen adjusted to life at B.H.S.

German club reviews german culture, history

Ideally, the study of a language involves more than the learning of grammar and pronunciation. At Benedictine, Deutscher Verein gives students an opportunity for a better understanding of the German language through the study of German language and culture

The Club was headed by German II students Kerry Powers, President, and John Crostic, Vice-President. Robert McMahon was elected from the German I class to serve as Secretary-Treasurer. The main activity of the Club this year was the viewing of films obtained from the German Embassy

Imagination, dedication, long hours, sacrifice, become standards of BHS dance committee

Every year the Dance Committee devotes much time and energy to the dances at Benedictine. This year was no different as the Dance Committee members worked hard to make formals and B-teens a success.

Musical groups are essential to a dance and this year the Dance Committee realized the need of music at dances. This year because of the different taste of the students, there was call for both soul and hard rock bands. This seemed to satisfy all the members of every class by providing dancing pleasure for everyone.

Of course decorations are necessary for successful dances and once again the decorations for the formals were superb. Again thanks to the imagination and determination of the Dance Committee. The Committee itself, was made up of special people. They were a few people working together tirelessly to achieve a common goal. That goal to produce a successful dance.

Hard work, planning, application, and devotion all made up a successful Dance Committee. This Year was no exception and the Dance Committee indeed be lauded.

Cadet staff discovers reality in creation and anticipation

In the introduction to this book, there is a phrase which aptly describes the feelings, the emotions, the responses of the staff of the CADET '70:

. . . the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time.

The staff of any yearbook gets to know its school very well. Processing hundreds of photographs, thousands of ideas, summarizing a year — leads to a very intimate familiarity with an institution, a family. It is hard to imagine that any Cadet knows Benedictine better than the students who have compounded the activities, the aspirations, the spirit of this year into one small volume.

The Chevron is again one of the best high school publications in the Richmond area. This fine quality in Benedictine's newspaper is due to the excellence of the staff.

Co-editors Luis Urrutia and Kevin Huennekens have produced a paper that has presented the thought stimulating material explaining BHS.

News editor Kevin McGowan has worked many long hours in presenting to the Cadets an entertaining and informative tabloid.

The editorials that give the Cadets an opportunity to express their opinions, were handled by Richard Kelley and Kevin Huennekens.

Robert McMahon took over the rigorous job of reporting the sports events at B.H.S. It must be noted that the book page of the Chevron was indeed one of the best in years.

As in any operation, the Chevron needed money and this year's Business Managers, Steve Woolford, and Dennis McDonald provided the newspaper with sufficient funds through ads.

Junior civitan builds citizenship at BHS

"Builders of Good Citizenship." This is the motto of the Junior Civitan Club at Benedictine. A relatively new club at Benedictine, Junior Civitan started just last year but because of its hard work has already become one of the most active clubs at Benedictine.

A Junior Civitan Club is primarily a service organization. The members learn to unselfishly serve their fellow members and their community. Training for citizenship and true leadership are also developed in Civitan members.

The activities of the club this year ranged from selling donuts and turning the proceeds over to UGF to selling fruitcakes to raise money for a camp for retarded children.

The key to the success of this year's Junior Civitan Club at Benedictine lies in its members. They unselfishly gave up a great deal of their time and worked hard to make Civitan known at Benedictine as well as throughout the community.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the Fellowship of Christian Athletes is one of the most active organizations at Benedictine. Founded three years ago, the FCA was originally a small and rather ineffectual unit. But now, under the watchful eye of Coach Crowder, who has been the Huddle's only moderator, the Benedictine FCA has become an important and a rapidly growing group.

And, unlike other clubs, the Huddle is active year round. During the summer months, two representatives are sent to a FCA conference summer camp at Black Mountain, North Carolina. This year, Donnie McNamara and Jud Anderson represented Benedictine at this function. They delivered a report concerning the camp at one of the first Huddle meetings during the fall.

During the school year itself, the FCA is also extremely active. It undertakes many projects, although the most commonly known are parking cars and taking tickets during the B.C.C.C., and keeping the Basketball Court clear during all home games.

Guided by the leadership of President Huddy Hyman, Vice-President Rickey Kastelberg, and Secretary-Treasurer Donnie McNamara, the BHS Huddle has made a name for itself by successfully blending Athletics, christianity, and service to Benedictine.

in upkeep of Cadet spirit

The importance of athletics to the everyday life and spirit of Benedictine cannot be underestimated by anyone. The Cadets who perform athletically — be it on a muddy football field, in a noise-blasted gymnasium, or in a sheltered rifle range — bring greater prestige to the name of Benedictine and serve as a point of union for the three hundred some other students.

Recognition for this effort, of course, is most frequently expressed in the awarding of a varsity letter. But beyond this, there stands still another form of tribute — the Monogram Club. This organization, as its name implies, is limited in membership to those Cadets who have distinguished themselves by winning varsity letters. This, in fact, is the only requirement for membership. Achieving this requirement, though, is a difficult task which demands at least several months and often several years of preliminary practice, preparation, and competition. The Cadet may realize, however, when he receives his varsity letter, that it is not the highest award that Benedictine can give in honor of athletic achievement. Rather it serves to complement the feeling of devotion which a member of any team will develop for his teammates and his school. The Monogram Club at Benedictine performs an often unnoticed but still essential function. If by no other way than by their mere presence, this select group of Cadet athletes serves to keep at an unbelievable level the school spirit which is so much a part of BHS.

Now we are ready. To strive for victory, or endure a loss. Here is the moment, we all work together. The satisfaction of knowing that we have done our best. Or the pain of knowing that we could have done better.

All of these things send us in search of values. We learn, or become more aware of the need for Charity and Christian sportsmanship. These things we learn while working together. These things guide us while we are reaching, striving, straining for a goal.

1969 football success

AUGUST 11: In past years, the approaching of summer practice has always been heralded by a certain amount of fear and apprehension among the players. There was an unusual emotion surrounding the advent of summer practice for the 1969 season. It was simple, eager anticipation. A new coaching staff, headed by ex-University of Richmond assistant Jim McGinnis, was a prime cause for this unbridled enthusiasm. The varsity tryouts approached practice with eagerness the coaches with determination. Both knew, however, that the fruit of their labor would not be evident until early September SEPTEMBER 2: After nearly a month of hot, grueling workouts, a team was formed. On paper it looked like a good one. An offensive unit spearheaded by quarterback Donnie Ross, tailback Lionel Shaw, and wide receiver Burt Boehling promised to be devastating. The defense, led by seniors Phil Amrhein and Dennis Jarvis, and linebacker Phil Huddleston had both tradition and talent going for it. Of course, there is much more to a successful football season than simply potential.

At last, the stage was set.

SEPTEMBER 5: The season opener was scheduled with Petersburg High School's Crimson Wave. The players and students, who were absolutely sky high, knew Benedictine could win. They traveled to Petersburg fully expecting to see such an occurrence. Petersburg scored first, though, and managed to cling to a slim 6-0 half-time lead. The Cadets had no better luck in the second half. The Wave scored again late in the game, and the final gun sounded with Petersburg on top 12-0.

SEPTEMBER 27: After annihilating the Spartans of Broad Run 41-0, the Cadets came up against Saint Christopher's. Evidence of Benedictine's determination began to bubble over more than 24 hours before the game. Things began encouragingly for the Cadets as Lionel Shaw, despite an injured ankle, dashed 48 yards for a touchdown. St. Christopher's shoved across two quick scores in the second half, but a Ross-to-Powers scoring toss pulled the Cadets even, 14-14. Each team had several opportunities in the fourth quarter, but neither could capitalize. Although it is said that ties satisfy no one, Benedictine followers were both satisfied and pleased by the 14-14 score.

cadets to 7-2-1 season

OCTOBER 18: After downing J.R. Tucker 3-0 on the strength of John Gusich's first period field goal, and bombing Varina to the tune of 28-0, the Cadets met the Warriors of Matoaca in Benedictine's annual homecoming game. Despite the team's winning ways, Coach McGinnis had been displeased with their overall play. He let the varsity know this without mincing words, and the results were immediate. The Cadets scored early and often against Matoaca, rolled up a halftime margin of more than 20 points, and coasted to a 31-12 decision. This scoring deluge added a large degree of enjoyment to Barbara Holzgreffe's coronation as homecoming queen.

OCTOBER 31: Benedictine advanced its seasonal record to 5-1-1 by rallying to defeat the Trojans from St. Emma's. The Cadets trailed by 16-6 at intermission, but came back violently in the second half to claim a 26-16 win. Against Lee-Davis it was a different story. Somewhat hampered by the cold, Benedictine could muster no offense save a 60 yard Ross-to-Boehling shot and fell to the Confederates 14-7.

Co-Capt's Amrhein, Ross, promote desire, effort

Co-captains Amrhein and Ross receive instructions from Coach McGinnis

NOVEMBER 7: The Cadets journeyed to Christchurch knowing that they had to make a comeback, and knowing that they could. The two teams volleyed during the first half and Benedictine got away to a 14-12 lead. But junior Tom Collins returned the second half kickoff 80 yards for a Cadet score, and Lionel Shaw completed a fantastic ground game — 30 carries, 190 yards, 4 touchdowns — to ice a 35-18 Benedictine triumph. The varsity record had been pushed to a very respectable 6-2-1, and with but one game remaining, it was just about over.

November 15: And suddenly it was the last game of the season. The Cadets put their record and their season on the line against the Trojans of Midlothian. The weather was cold and occasional snow flurries blew across the field. The Benedictine varsity was grim and determined as they prepared for the kickoff. They badly wanted a win. They got it. John Gusich staked B.H.S. to an early 3-0 lead, Shaw scored on a one yard dive, and Phil Huddleston returned an interception 90 yards for another Benedictine tally. The score at half was 16-0. When the final gun sounded, it had become 29-7. Spirit . . . sacrifice . . . Success

Cross country runners

As far as Benedictine teams go, the 1969 Cross Country squad was a bit unusual. As far as seasonal records go, it was not

The Cadets opened their season with a stunning upset over the Hermitage Panthers, one of the area's strongest teams. This encounter set the pattern for the rest of the year, as the Cadets, led by captain Jim Spencer, rolled up a 7-3 mark. The highest placing runners for BHS were George Jones and, of course, Spencer, with newcomer Robbie Pecht adding needed support.

A team without a coach, the squad displayed total dedication in practice . . . although not necessarily to Cross Country. Touch football games became the standard workouts, and square-outs and post patterns became more common than laps around Maymont Park.

Oddly enough, though, practices such as this only served to generate a fantastic amount of spirit among the eleven team members. This may be realized, more than anything else, in the fact that this year, for the first time, members of the Cross Country team were truly sorry to see the season end.

A relatively new sport at Benedictine, the rifle team has done a tremendous job of rising from a small, unknown, activity to a successful Varsity sport. The man who has been most instrumental in this endeavor is the coach of the team, Nelson Eanes. Together with the assistance of Mr. James P. Wills, assistant coach, he has led the team to many victories.

The captain of the team, Steve Snyder with the aid of the co-captain, Joel Denton, started at the end of last year training this year's team. Through classroom lectures, and many, many hours of practice on the range, they have guided the team with example and continuous, individual competition. Last year, Steve was awarded a trophy for having the highest average on the team, and along with Joe. Denton and J. P. Wills received a varsity letter. Steve was also chosen for NRA ALL LEAGUE TEAM.

This year the team members include a remarkable new addition to the team. Al Wallmeyer. Al has done extremely well in his shooting, as has the rest of the team.

The team members include Steve Snyder, Captain; Joel Denton, Co-Captain; Graham Jennings, Scorer; Al Wallmeyer; J. P. Wills; Marion Fox; Al Elko; Tim Ryan; Paul Nissley; and Bob Breiner. AUGUST 19: In late August, temperatures inside the Benedictine Memorial Gymnasium soar to well over 100 degrees, and it becomes an effort to breathe, much less to play 40 minutes of basketball. Nevertheless, it was here that the 1969-'70 varsity was born. This team was the object of much speculation and much debate. It was a young team and a very small team with few veterans returning from the previous year. But this unit had already proved itself by finishing second to George Wythe in the city's Summer League Playoffs, and by this fact alone seemed to bear good tidings for the coming season.

DECEMBER 23: In a very short time, the Cadets proved that they were, indeed, a very good team. After opening the season with a 77-46 rout of Matoaca, and then falling to Collegiate 49-64, the Benedictine varsity rolled up four consecutive wins — including a thrilling decision over St. Christopher's and two landslide Catholic League victories. As a team the varsity was a pleasure to watch. Seven regulars, five of whom were juniors, keyed an unselfish offense and a sticky, pressing defense. And, for the first time in several years, the Cadets were in position to make a strong run at the BCCC title.

Cadets earn fourth place

DECEMBER 27: The 1969-'70 Benedictine Capitol City Classic brought perhaps the most wide open and interesting field in the history of the tourney. Participating teams included defending champion Canevin, Brother Rice of Chicago, Loyola of Baltimore, Shanahan of Pennsylvania, and Gibbons of New York. Rounding out the field were Collegiate, St. Christopher's, and, of course, Benedictine. There were no surprises in the quarterfinal play, with Canevin, Benedictine, Collegiate, and Brother Rice all advancing to the next round.

DECEMBER 29: The most exciting game in this year's tournament was the title game. 1968 winner Canevin reached the finals by defeating the host Cadets. Paired against them was unheralded Brother Rice, who had dumped Collegiate to reach the Championship. The outcome of this game was in doubt until the last two seconds when a full court pass gave Rice an unmolested layup at the buzzer, a 47-46 win over Canevin, and the 1969 BCCC crown.

Heroics by Kelly, Ross result in key wins

JANUARY 19: The two day road trip to the Tidewater area left the varsity weary and exhausted, but it also left them with two more victories. Defeating Tidewater Academy 77-49 and Portsmouth Catholic 77-60, the Cadets swept this series for the first time in four years. Momentum for this weekend had been mounting since January 3rd, when Reid Kelly's last second shot in the second overtime staked BHS to a 59-57 victory over Holy Cross. This triumph dissipated the last doubts concerning the ability of the Benedictine varsity and firmly established the Cadets as a team to be reckoned with.

JANUARY 25: When Donnie Ross aimed a 40 foot push shot at the basket with one second remaining against Roanoke Catholic, everyone expected an overtime period. When the shot swished, the BHS supporters went absolutely wild as Ross and the Cadets posted a 54-52 win. This victory was the sixth in a row for the team, and, coupled with an earlier 57-39 pasting of St. Emma's, gave the Cadets victories over nearly every major contender in the Catholic League.

FEBRUARY 27: When the seedings for the 25th State Catholic Tournament were announced, it seemed only proper that Benedictine would begin its quest for the title by playing the Crusaders of Norfolk Catholic. The gymnasium was packed — literally — with hundreds of rabid Cadet fans who, that night, wanted nothing more than to defeat the Crusaders. Nor did they hope in vain, as Benedictine spoiled Norfolk's title hopes by gaining a 61-49 victory. Senior Cliff Hurdle played the finest game of his career, and Jim Bowman swished 19 second half points to help the Cadets overcome a siege of foul trouble and the late-charging Crusaders. Other first round victors were Roanoke and Holy Cross. St. Emma, with 34 points by Donald Thomas, shocked Ireton 68-60 and thus gained a semifinal berth opposite BHS.

FEBRUARY 28: With approximately six seconds gone in the first quarter, Jim Bowman canned a 15 footer to break a scoreless tie. The Cadets then sprinted to a 6-0 lead, and never trailed thereafter. Reid Kelly hit for 19 points, but his greatest contribution of the evening was on defense as he held Trojan ace Thomas substantially below his average. A scoring burst which was keyed by Bruce Ganey and Steve Goodman killed the last threat by St. Emma's, and Benedictine triumphed 54-45. By virtue of the win, the Cadets were propelled into the championship game. Their opponent was to be Holy Cross, the first seeded team. The Gaels had outlasted Roanoke Catholic in a scoring duel to gain the finale.

MARCH 1: Then suddenly, abruptly, it was all over. Early in the championship game the Cadets owned a three point lead and the ball, but the inside coordination of Baker and Coles of Holy Cross robbed Benedictine of its fast break, and the BHS offense simply bogged down. The Gaels surged back, and by halftime had an eight point lead. As the minutes of the second half ticked away, it became painfully apparent that Benedictine was going to lose the game and the Championship. The game ended with Holy Cross on top 68-50. Reid Kelly scored 17 points for the Cadets, but his effort, as was the work of the entire team in compiling a 21-9 record, was rendered temporarily meaningless by this loss.

But in the quiet, disappointed faces of Jimmy Bowman, Steve Goodman, and even Coach Rutledge, one thought seemed to linger as a comforting token — next year.

Next year, though, was still many months away, and for a while, anyway, the agony of coming so close — only to lose — would remain.

create a poised, experienced baseball squad

Above Returning Baseball veterans Wills, Redmond, Tichacek, Huber, Goodman, and Ross

Ironically, the most well known facet of any Baseball season at Benedictine is the conditioning program to which Coach Warren Rutledge subjects his aspiring tryouts. The players complain about it, the coaches joke about it, but everyone realizes that windsprints in February will pave the way for scoring in April and May.

But with the exception of this running, practically no attention is paid to the efforts of the baseball team. This is truly regrettable, because in the past several years, the team has developed a habit of winning. The past year was no exception, as a well balanced squad rolled up an impressive record. Senior lettermen Donnie Ross, Walt Huber, Tom Tichacek, and Jack Redmond filled key infield and outfield positions, and underclassmen Steve Goodman, J. P. Wills, and Tom Collins were tabbed as likely members of the pitcher-catcher staff. Under the watchful eye of Coaches Rutledge, Loughridge, and Lyons, the baseball team drilled itself to perfection in order to be prepared for the seasonal schedule.

Much of this season was played at home, and the longest road trip was made to Christchurch. By far the toughest opponent was the Douglas Freeman Rebels, but games such as those with Collegiate and Hermitage also provided stiff competition.

The Benedictine track team was faced with an unusual dilemma during the 1970 season — they had no track on which to practice. This obstacle was overcome by using the Virginia Museum grounds as a practice area. The sight of hurdles and an occasional covey of distance runners shocked many museum patrons, but this unusual training program shocked many of the Cadets' opponents during the year.

This year's schedule was highlighted by meets with St. Emma's and St. Christopher's and saw some of the toughest meets in anyone's memory. Coach Crowder's runners wound up the season in the State Catholic Meet, and a select few went on to the State Prep Meet.

A team somewhat lacking in depth, the track squad depended heavily on veterans Lionel Shaw — 100 and 220, Jim Spencer — 2 mile, Kerry Powers — 440, Vince Lowery — 880, and Shep Shepherd hurdles. Individual performances, though spectacular, don't win meets, however. For this reason the coaches looked to the likes of George Jones, Dennis McDonald, and Phil Huddleston to give added support in their particular events.

Despite the lack of regular facilities, the Benedictine track team never lessened its drive, and by this fact bore out Coach Crowder's statement that: "Nothing beats winning."

Golf team novices overcome inexperience

The golf team was this year experiencing a dilemma that is very common to BHS teams. Having lost to graduation the majority of its experience and scoring ability, the team was in something of a rebuilding year. Led by John Gusich and Bob Houghtaling, the squad nevertheless exhibited promising talent against some very rugged Richmond-area competition. Maturity came rapidly to this year's golf team members, and for them, next year already holds great promise.

Tennis team achieves recognition in victory

For years, tennis was a truly minor sport at Benedictine. It lived in the shadow of the more popular spring sports, and as such, never received the recognition which it deserved. Now this situation is beginning to correct itself. Under the guidance of Coach Pete Franklin, the tennis program at BHS has progressed rapidly, and the won-lost record of this season's team showed this improvement. So did the schedule, as Benedictine played a slate representative of some of the area's strongest tennis powers.

Although Coach Franklin's knowledge of the game of tennis was the keystone for this year's squad to build upon, his assistance could extend but so far. On the court, in actual competition, it was the athletes who determined the outcome of each match. Captain Bob Keenan, one of the few Seniors on the squad, and perhaps the most returnee, saw to it that win or lose, the spirit of the tennis team never flagged.

Below: Brian Clark strokes a forehand return. Right: Captain Bob Keenan serves to begin a match.

59 year history of Benedictine parallels growth of commonwealth moral, financial support to Cadet '70

Let's be realistic . . . it takes a great deal of money to do anything worthwhile. Especially if that "anything" is printing a yearbook. Especially if that yearbook has rated number one in two national and one state contest. But it isn't just a matter of pride. Like everything the cadets of Benedictine do, putting together a yearbook has to be a first-class job. It takes the help of many friends. Many of these friends simply bought an ad . . . or so they thought . . . But they really bought the thanks of the CADET '70 staff for helping make this book the best.

Ambitions, dreams realized as cadets near Friday night — 10 P.M.

Sitting as all envelopes.
The halls empty and yet full . . .
Void of physical embrace,
Full of ambitions, dreams, and desires.

Remembering as Freshmen . . .
Oh damn! It's all been told before.
And yet having been told, never been said.
And even THOUGH it will never be said
It will forever be attempted.

One light burning . . .
Whistling whetting its' edge on the silence.
Is this all that remains?
Maybe, but if so then let it be told
That SOMETHING remained.

Then let that SOMETHING, if only a beacon
Or a plea be told of as the Symbol.
The Symbol of gratitude, melancholy, or utter joy.

A Symbol to all who will be told
But never understand . . .

To the surprise of some students (top) a new and different face is seen in Benedictine's cluttered corridors. Kevin Maddock (right) steps off with pride as guidon bearer for the Honor Platoon. Cadets salute the colors as afternoon formation brings the close of another school day. (above)
